0-2 (.000) OVERALL RECORD | 0-2 (.000) WITH NEW YORK | 0-0 (.000) PLAYOFFS

Katie Smith enters her fourth season as a member of the New York Liberty coaching staff, having been promoted to associate head coach for the 2016 season, after serving two years as an assistant coach. Since Smith joined the coaching staff, the Liberty has posted an overall record of 59-43 (.578), posting back-to-back 20-win seasons and WNBA Playoffs berths in 2015 and 2016.

Smith spent the 2013 season – her final in the WNBA – with the Liberty, reuniting with Bill Laimbeer who she won two titles with as a member of the Detroit Shock (now Dallas). She retired after the 2013 campaign, finishing her 17-year playing career as the all-time leading scorer in women's professional basketball and second in WNBA history, scoring 7,885-career points as a professional and 6,452 in the WNBA.

A 15-year veteran of the WNBA, Smith was a seven-time All-Star and two-time First Team All-WNBA selection. She won WNBA Championships in 2006 and 2008 with the Shock, and in 2011 was voted one of the Top 15 Players in WNBA history. She ranks first in the WNBA in both three-point field goals made (906) and attempted (2,466), second in career points (6,452), fourth in free throws made (1,440) and 10th in all-time assists (1,258).

Smith is the all-time leading scorer in the history of U.S. women's professional basketball (ABL & WNBA) with 7,885 career points. Smith signed with the WNBA in 1999, joining Minnesota after a two-year stint in the ABL. In 2006, she became the only player to win a championship with both the ABL and WNBA, which was the same year she became the first player to win a WNBA All-Star game as a member of both the Eastern and Western Conference teams. During the WNBA's 20th season in 2016, Smith was voted as one of the top-20 best and most influential players in league history.

Her success also extended to the international level, having won three Olympic Gold Medals in 2000, 2004 and 2008, and the World Championships in 1998 and 2002.

Smith spent several seasons on the women's basketball staff at her alma mater Ohio State University. As a student-athlete for the Buckeyes, Smith helped guide her team to the NCAA championship game as a freshman, and went on to break the Big Ten scoring record for points scored in a career in men's or women's basketball. On Jan. 21, 2001, Ohio State honored her as the first female Buckeye athlete to have her number retired.

1. Missed opportunities to extend their lead

After being down to the Lynx at half time, the Liberty actually led for the majority of the second half and possessed a 67-61 lead with 4:11 remaining in the game. And while there were some timely shots made by the Liberty via Tina Charles and Kia Nurse, the team didn't do enough to extend their short leads. In the game's final four minutes, the Lynx cut the Liberty's lead down to one before embarking on a 12-7 run to complete their comeback.

2. It's extremely tough to contain Minnesota's "Big Three"

Although this can serve as an obvious fact, it is well known the Lynx's trio of Maya Moore, Seimone Augustus, and Sylvia Fowles are very difficult to guard. The idea of stopping them is unrealistic as the more realistic goal is to slow them down. The Liberty's overall defense was solid on Friday as they forced the Lynx to shoot 39% from the field but Moore, Augustus, and Fowles weren't slowed down much. They combined to score 56 points on 55% shooting and repeatedly hit clutch shots in the game's final minutes.

3. Nurse is adjusting just fine to the WNBA

Yes it's a bit early to be accurately describing Kia Nurse's impact for the Liberty this season, but the former UConn Guard is making us do otherwise. The team's 10th overall selection from the 2018 Draft has produced her second consecutive game with double-digit points. But besides her scoring production, it's been impressive watching Nurse display enough poise and play-making against top-notch competition. You wouldn't think that's a rookie doing such things but Nurse certainly is one.

QUOTES-NEW YORK VS. MINNESOTA (5/25)

Charles on Moore's game-winner...

"I'm never surprised when Maya let's it go. There are more chances of her making it than missing it, especially with the game on the line. That's her time. Again, it was great defense, there are other things that led to that opportunity that we shouldn't have even let them have that opportunity or think it was a game for them."

Charles on playing in Westchester...

"We are very thankful and grateful for those individuals from the city that commute out. You know my father is from Brooklyn and he came out, my mother is in Long Island and she came out. We are very thankful for the commitment for our season ticket holders and just what the NY Liberty management was able to do to make it as close to the same atmosphere and feel as Madison Square Garden."

Nurse on Moore's game winner...

"I think Maya hit a tough shot and it was great defense by Z [Shavonte Zellous]. That's something she does on a daily basis and just being clutch in that moment so obviously it was a battle, but she hit a tough shot."

Nurse on transitioning from coming off the bench to being a starter...

"Personally, I see myself doing whatever role the team needs me to do. When I came here and got drafted I had the opportunity to play anywhere. This was a great fit for me and a place I really wanted to be with the great vets that I get to learn from and great coaching staff as well. So, if my role is to come off the bench and play some defense than I am all for it."

Nurse on the depth of the Liberty...

"I think with our team and what we have, our individual skill sets, then what we do collectively we can be a tough match up for anybody. Obviously, this was a very good battle and a good transition from our game against Chicago and it can only go up from here."

Zellous on the fans in Westchester...

"We're excited that the fans came out to support us for the home opener. We just hope they continue to support us throughout the season."

NEW YORK VS. MINNESOTA (5/25) RECAP

NEW YORK UNABLE TO HOLD ON; LYNX HIT TOUGH SHOT TO TAKE GAME 78-72

WHITE PLAINS, NY— May 25, 2018 — The New York Liberty competed in a back-and forth affair with reigning WNBA Champion Minnesota Lynx until a three-point heave from the release of Maya Moore ultimately put the game in the Lynx's favor, 78-72. Tina Charles and Kia Nurse concluded the Liberty's (0-2) home opener in double-figures for a consecutive time while Charles also credited a double-double.

After playing to five ties and through 14 lead changes, Moore nailed a 25-foot dagger for Minnesota (2-1), with 19.5 seconds left to play, to credit the game's 15th and final lead swap of the night.

"I'm never surprised when Maya let's it go," Charles began. "There are more chances of her making it than missing it, especially with the game on the line. That's her time. Again, it was great defense, there are other things that led to that opportunity that we shouldn't have even let them have that opportunity or think it was a game for them."

Charles finished with 18 points on 50-percent shooting to lead the Liberty while also coming down with a team-high 12 boards. She played a second team-leading 30 minutes tonight. Moore ended with 20 points while also hitting three attempts from downtown, including the one to turn the tide for good.

Nurse also knocked down a clutch triple from Shavonte Zellous to reward New York a four-point lead at the 1:39 mark of the fourth-quarter. The reserve was a 50-percent three-point shooter on the night and registered 14 points-nine of which were earned from distance.

"Personally, I see myself doing whatever role the team needs me to do," Nurse stated. "When I came here and got drafted I had the opportunity to play anywhere. This was a great fit for me and a place I really wanted to be with the great vets that I get to learn from and great coaching staff as well. So, if my role is to come off the bench and play some defense than I am all for it."

Zellous ended with nine points at the team's new home after not being able to connect last Sunday.

"We're excited that the fans came out to support us for the home opener," Zellous added. "We just hope they continue to support us throughout the season."

New York invites Dallas to the Westchester County Center, Tuesday, May 29 for a 7:00 p.m. (ET) tip-off.

CHICAGO, IL— May 20, 2018 — The New York Liberty played a tightly contested match with host Chicago Sky. Down the stretch, a pair of momentous sequences for the Sky in response to a Liberty scoring drought put the game in the opposition's favor, 80-76. Tina Charles provided a team-high 19 points on 40-percent shooting.

Head coach Katie Smith began. "We've got to hit shots. They hit shots, and we didn't. That was honestly the biggest thing. We've got to make them more uncomfortable, but they shot at 46-percent, almost 47-percent and we shot at like 37-percent. So again, we've got to take good shots and then make them."

Both clubs battled closely, with New York's (0-1) largest lead capped at five and Chicago's (2-0) advantage at eight points. Moreover, the two teams swapped leads eight times and played to seven ties including the game's final deadlocked score, 62-up, at 7:31 of the fourth quarter.

The game's leading scorer, Chicago's Allie Quigley, credited the tie converting two tries at the stripe prior to a three-point make by Diamond DeShields less than a minute later. Amanda Zahui B. surged the Liberty on a putback lay-in and a triple to leave all but one point of their deficit, 68-67. Quigley ended with 22 points.

Charles mentioned. "With myself, I'm not the only one that brings energy to the team. I think everyone did. Especially off the bench. I think Amanda did a great job establishing herself down there."

Zahui B.'s 15 points off the bench marked the highest point total for the center through last season. Her production was two points shy of her career-high 17 points registered against Minnesota on June 29, 2016. She also contributed seven boards.

From that point to about the game's clutch time, New York continued to contain Chicago's control to no more than three points. However, Cheyenne Parker's reverse finish at 2:03 pushed its lead to five as part of a 4-3 run to help settle the final.

Rookie Kia Nurse recorded 17 points in her first professional outing to go along with three assists, two rebounds and two steals while committing just one turnover in 28:43 minutes as a reserve. Her point total was the most by a Canadian WNBA player in their debut since Stacey Dales scored 23 points for Washington in 2002. Nurse also tied Dales for most three-pointers in her first game.

Nurse stated. "I think I was excited to play, to finally get one under my belt. But, I think I've been trying to, within practice, to work on the confidence, make sure my teammates can be confident in me, and earn a sense of trust there. So, they helped me out through the whole entire thing making sure I was ready to go."

Charles went 8-of-20 from the floor, 1-of-4 from distance and 2-of-3 at the line en route to her team-high 19 points. She also grabbed four rebounds and two steals.

Charles added. "The next game we play is Minnesota. I know each of those individuals on that team. They've got Tanisha Wright who's a great defender. It's going to be a harder game. We've got to be more aggressive. We've got to take ownership of our mistakes and what we do. That's just the way we have to go out and play moving forward."

Minnesota visits the Westchester County Center, Friday, May 25. The Liberty and Lynx square off at 7:30 p.m. (ET).

VETERAN AND ROOKIE

Charles and Nurse are the lone New York players to put up double-figures in both contests this season. Charles finished with 19 points against Chicago and 18 versus Minnesota. Charles also grabbed 12 boards against the Lynx. Nurse credited 17 points in her first professional game at the Sky and ended with 14 versus the Lynx.

KEY MATCHUP

Bria Hartley and Dallas' Skylar Diggins-Smith lead their teams with 4.5 and 5.5 respective assists per game. Those tallies rank ninth and third in the WNBA, respectively. Hartley's six dimes dished against Chicago were one shy of her career-best (7) registered against Los Angeles on May 20, 2016. Diggins-Smith has peaked at nine assists saw against Phoenix, May 18, to roll out the Wings' season.

LAST MEETING

Tina Charles had 18 points and 18 rebounds to help the Liberty clinch the third seed in the playoffs with an 82-81 win over the Dallas Wings on Sunday, September 3, 2017 and extend the Liberty's winning streak to 10 games.

Trailing 82-79 after a Charles putback with 22.1 seconds to play, the Wings missed, but forced a turnover and Aerial Powers scored on a putback with 3.7 seconds left. When the Liberty inbounded the ball in the frontcourt after a timeout, they had a backcourt violation, giving Dallas one last shot. Skylar Diggins-Smith's attempt from the 3-point line bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

There were 12 ties and 10 lead changes in the game.

Epiphanny Prince registered a team-high 20 points on .500 shooting (7-of-14). Kia Vaughn (11 points), Shavonte Zellous (12 points) and Hartley (13) rounded out the Liberty players in double-figures.

Glory Johnson led the Wings with 17 points, Diggins-Smith had 16 and Powers 14.

LIBERTY PARTNERED WITH ABBOTT HOUSE

The vision of Abbott House is to make promising futures a reality and on May 18, the New York Liberty took part in the organization's 55-year-long storied tradition for its 2018 season tip-off event. Abbott House in Irvington, NY, which was founded in 1963, is rooted in a history of social service and social justice. Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. provided the invocation at the organization's inaugural dinner in 1965, and its mission has remained to provide durable foundations and promising futures to humans with the most complex needs.

The Liberty visited classrooms and were able to hear of the students' stories and view some of their expressive artwork. The group also indulged in some dance battles as competitive preparation for the pick-up games and basketball instruction that awaited them.

COACH'S CORNER

"We can keep getting better in all aspects," Smith said after Friday night's gut-retching 78-72 loss to the defending champion Minnesota Lynx. "We're going to continue to learn and to grow as a team. But I was really impressed with tonight's performance."

NEW KID ON THE BLOCK

Kia Nurse recorded 17 points in her first professional game against Chicago on May 20 to go along with three assists, two rebounds and two steals while committing just one turnover in 28:43 minutes as a reserve. Her point total was the most by a Canadian WNBA player in their debut since Stacey Dales scored 23 points for Washington in 2002. Nurse also tied Dales for most three-pointers in her first game.

TINA CHARLES - HOPEY'S HEART FOUNDATION

The Hopey's Heart Foundation was formed in memory of Tina Charles' late aunt Maureen "Hopey" Vaz, who died of multiple organ failure on March 9th, 2013. Hopey was known for having a very giving heart and when her own heart failed it was a tragic loss to her family and an eye-opener to Charles, who prior to the passing of her aunt, made a $14,775 donation for ten Automated External Defibrillators (AED) to the New York Department of Education and the Wes Leonard Heart Team. The Hopey's Heart Foundation was founded to prevent Sudden Cardiac Arrest from claiming the lives of promising student athletes like Wes Leonard. It is committed to providing AEDs nationally for the prevention of heart and other injuries in student and amateur athletes through the provision of health education and medical equipment in schools, community and recreational centers. The Hopey's Heart Foundation is committed to improving sports safety and raising awareness of Sudden Cardiac Arrest throughout the country. Tina annually donates her entire WNBA salary to Hopey's Heart Foundation in order to place AEDs in areas of need.

Kia Nurse, Liberty rookie, can make immediate impact on defense

The Connecticut alumna will make her home debut Friday against the visiting Minnesota Lynx in Westchester.

By Jeff Weisinger

In the one-game, second-round WNBA playoffs last year, Mystics guard Kristi Toliver dropped a game-high 32 points with a single-game record nine threes as Washington came back from behind to hand the New York Liberty their second-straight one-and-done in the postseason.

New head coach Katie Smith has emphasized defense with the Liberty this year and rookie guard Kia Nurse out of Connecticut is the one who's expected to bring that lockdown defense to the team in 2018.

"She knows how to play basketball," Smith said of the 10th overall pick Nurse from this year's WNBA Draft. "So, at the end of the day, she's just always going to give 100 percent and that's something you can really hang your hat on."

"My defense is still pretty solid. I'll take that," Nurse said. "But it's definitely a system that I think works well toward my strengths. I'm trying to do all those extra little things and then everything else just falls into place."

Nurse enters her rookie season with a lot of experience already behind her. She played for the storied UConn women's basketball program, where she was named the 2018 WBCA Defensive Player of the Year. She averaged 13.8 points, 3.5 rebounds and 2.8 assists along with total 44 steals during the 2017-18 season.

During the 2016 Summer Olympics, she averaged 11 points, including dropping 25 points against Serbia. The Olympic experience, along with her time at UConn, helped prepare her for the pros.

"I think it's helped in the confidence section of my life," Nurse said. "When you get to play in tournaments like the Olympics and play with older players from different teams I think it allows you to kind of come in here and understand, 'Hey, I've done this before. Have a confidence in yourself to put yourself out there, make mistakes and come out on top.'"

Nurse debuted in Sunday's 80-76 season-opening loss to the Chicago Sky, scoring 17 points in 29 minutes off the bench. She'll make her home debut for the Liberty on Friday against the Minnesota Lynx at the Westchester County Center in White Plains.

Coaching Change to Smith Could Benefit Liberty This Season

By Lenn Robbins

What if the Oklahoma City Thunder hadn't traded Victor Oladipo to the Indiana Pacers? Would we be talking about a player who is a finalist for the NBA's Most Improved Player award?

The same dynamics can occur for an entire franchise. Sometimes change is good.

The New York Liberty achieved some great success under former coach Bill Laimbeer. He posted a 91-78 record from 2013-17, including the best record in the Eastern Conference the last three seasons.

But the team lost in the second round of the playoffs the last two seasons. As last season came down the stretch, it wasn't uncommon to hear players talk about the challenges playing for a coach such as Laimbeer, who is caustic and as subtle as a heavy metal guitar riff.

Laimbeer bolted the Liberty after the season to take the head coaching position with the now Las Vegas Aces.

When the Liberty tip off their season Sunday at the Chicago Sky, Smith will make her head coaching debut. Despite playing for Laimbeer and learning the fine points of coaching from the former Detroit Pistons' Bad Boy, Smith will bring a more even-keeled persona to the first chair.

[Watch the Liberty's Season Opener Sunday at 7 PM on MSG+ and MSG GO. Download the App for Free]

"I always thought of myself as someone who leads by example and not a great talker," Smith said with a laugh. "I believe showing up every day and being consistent. There's no better way to prepare than doing the work every day in practice."

Smith has several advantages going into her rookie coaching season:

1. In Tina Charles, the Queens' Bee, the Liberty has one of the elite players in the league. Charles made a conscious decision last season to become more of a leader and she was the leading voice in the locker room.
2. Smith has a veteran staff led by Herb Williams, Barbara Farris and Teresa Weatherspoon, the point guard whisperer. Last season, Weatherspoon helped Manhattan's Epiphanny Prince return to elite form after suffering a torn ACL in 2015. She'll work with Brittany Boyd, who tore her Achilles tendon in the second game of last season.
3. There is no shortage of experience on this team. Six of the top players have at least five seasons of WNBA experience. Smith doesn't have to spoon feed this group.

"I'm going to be anxious Sunday night, no question," Smith acknowledged. "I hope I keep all the plays in my head because my job is to put the players in the best position to succeed. But I have a great staff, I have one of the great leaders in the league in Tina Charles and we all have the same purpose."

"Hopefully once the ball goes up I'm not thinking as much as reacting to what I see. You rely on your intuition, just as you did as a player. You watch the game and make your decisions."

Smith was known as a relentless, tenacious player. She was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame at this year's Final Four. She was a seven-time WNBA All-Star, a two-time WNBA champion and a three-time Olympic gold medalist.

But the way she played, a drill sergeant with a basketball, will be how she expects the Liberty to compete this season.

"You talk about Katie and that fierce competitor that she is, I think we're going to mirror that," said first-year Liberty player Marissa Coleman, a WNBA veteran who gives the team another frontcourt option. "That's the one thing we're going to do."

"We have a ton of talent on this team but if we compete night in and night out we'll have a very successful season."

The question that Liberty fans want to know is this: What constitutes a successful season? The Liberty went 22-12 last season. Most franchises would take that in a heart beat. Not the Liberty.

The franchise is yearning for its first-ever WNBA title. Laimbeer got them to the playoffs only to have the season end with home playoff losses.

"We always want to win a championship every year," said guard Bria Hartley of Long Island.

"The last couple of years didn't end the way we wanted it to so we want to make sure this season ends really well."

Learn from the Leader: Katie Smith Talks About Becoming Liberty Head Coach

By Max Resatar

There are two full courts at the New York Liberty's practice facility in Tarrytown, NY. Katie Smith, the Liberty's new head coach, stands between them on the sideline, watching her squad go through a 5-on-5-on-5 drill. The Liberty's roster has been split into two teams and a group of college-level men's players make up the other five. They go back-and-forth in a fast paced drill, trying to score three points. Get a bucket, stay and sprint to the other side to try and get another. The losers of the drill have to run baseline-to-baseline.

A few moments later Smith stands on the court with a big smile on her face and lines up the losers. She blows her whistle and darts out of the way of an incoming sprinter, looking over at her assistant coaches and laughing.

Then she kicks everyone off the court and goes through a shell drill, walking the Liberty through one of their offensive sets. Fourth-year forward Rebecca Allen raises her hand and asks Smith to detail the play again.

"[Smith is] teaching it," Liberty assistant coach Teresa Weatherspoon says. "There's a difference in coaching and teaching. There's a huge difference. It's about stopping and talking about the small details so the kids can understand the proper angle to set screens, the proper way to have your feet, the movement, the timing. She's teaching that."

Smith, 43, has already locked up a spot in the Naismith Hall of Fame because of what she did as a player—two-time WNBA champion, 2008 Finals MVP, three-time Olympic Gold Medalist, seven-time All-Star. Now she's just a few days away from her first season as a head coach.

"Being a player is way easier than a coach," Smith says. "The time, it just never ends. Honestly, most of my career, I didn't want to coach. I literally said it, all the way up until four years left. And then Bill [Laimbeer] was like, 'Hey, you want to coach?' And I didn't have anything lined up."

Smith played her last pro season with the Liberty in 2013 and then transitioned right to the bench. It was only a matter of time before she was given the reins in New York.

"I wouldn't say I expected it but I had a good feeling that it was going to be somebody that we were familiar with," Liberty guard Brittany Boyd says with a grin. "Katie's been here since I came in. I was excited, you know, to get to play for Katie. It's a good experience to have a new head coach for the first time."

Smith says that she's been calling around to her former coaches learn as much as possible in an effort to put Boyd and the rest of her players in the best position to win.

She says that Brian Agler and Cheryl Reeve have been key during the offseason to helping her in all aspects of coaching, from writing practice plans to effectively teaching technique.

"What's also been special about the game is not just the playing. It truly is the relationships," she says, standing underneath one of the baskets at the practice facility. Two of her former teammates, Shavonte Zellous and Marissa Coleman, are to her left. Weatherspoon, dribbling around the gym, has played against her and coached with her for well over 20 years. The recently retired Swin Cash was intensely watching today's practice. She played on Team USA and two WNBA teams with Smith.

Boyd says Smith, with all of her knowledge and years of playing, is already a good coach. "She explains things, she's breaking stuff down. But she's also holding us all accountable for our mistakes. It doesn't matter who you are. If you make a mistake, she's going to put you on the line and run. I think we're learning from that," the fourth-year guard says.

But Smith is also known for constantly joking around. Practices are always light, with lots of laughs. Smith and Weatherspoon have spent the last few seasons working with the Liberty's guards and forwards before games start. Those pregame warmup sessions regularly feature trash talk, smirking and mock games of one-on-one.

"If they see that with us, it trickles to them," Weatherspoon says. "We walk in, it's about having fun, they're going to have fun. It's important."

"I think that breeds an environment of excitement," Smith says. "Because it is work, but we're also playing a game. You just don't want them to get so worried. You want to go out there and play a little bit."

The Liberty are gearing up for a big season. They've been the three seed in the playoffs for the past two years and they've been bounced out early in each of those post-season runs. One-time WNBA MVP Tina Charles is still in her prime and Smith has veterans like Zellous, Coleman, Epiphanny Prince, Kia Vaughn and Sugar Rodgers to help Boyd, Bria Hartley, Kiah Stokes and the rest of NY's young players.

"You go home and start thinking about it at night," Smith says. "Maybe I should pull up some new plays. Like, how can I help them? Your brain is just never off."

By Jeff Weisinger

Last year, the New York Liberty won over 20 games, finished first in the Eastern Conference and made the playoffs for the third straight season. But, even after winning 10 straight games to end the regular season, they went one-and-done in the playoffs, again, this time losing 82-68 to the Washington Mystics.

Now, with a new head coach and a new primary home arena, the Liberty are looking toward an Eastern Conference title and their first WNBA Finals appearance since 2002.

"I don't think we talk about [the playoffs] because we're trying to build up every day in creating an environment where it's competitive," said Katie Smith, the Liberty's first-year head coach. A two-time WNBA champion and 2018 Hall of Fame inductee, she was the team's associate head coach under Bill Laimbeer for the last four years.

"Hopefully practice becomes harder than games, and we're demanding more of them, and they're going after each other and competing so that we can execute."

The Liberty return a solid core from last year, led by top-scorer Tina Charles and supported by reigning Sixth Woman of the Year Sugar Rodgers and two-time All-Star Epiphanny Prince. The veteran center Charles, a Queens native, averaged 19.7 points (third in the WNBA) while also averaging 9.4 rebounds (fourth) in 2017. She was named first team All-WNBA and first-team All-Defense last year as well for the fifth and second time in her career, respectively.

Joining Charles in Smith's defensive-minded Liberty is guard Kia Nurse, the team's first-round pick out of Connecticut and the 2017-18 WBCA Defensive Player of the Year. Along with her lockdown defense, Nurse has solid range from the perimeter. She averaged 13.5 points as a senior at UConn while shooting 44 percent from beyond the arc. She led the Liberty in scoring (14.5 ppg) in their two preseason games last week.

"There's a lot of learning going on, a lot of different transitions," Nurse said after practice Wednesday. "I think for me, personally, I want to just succeed in whatever role the team needs me to do."

The Liberty open their season at Chicago against the Sky on Sunday. The May 25 home opener against the Minnesota Lynx tops off at their new home, the Westchester County Center in White Plains.

New Liberty coach's no-nonsense shtick gives hope for redemption
By Brian Lewis

They also don't usually face the pressure of getting a seasoned squad over the hump, or of erasing years of bad playoff karma and postseason choke jobs.

That's what Smith stepped into when she replaced Bill Laimbeer (now with the Las Vegas Aces) as coach of New York's WNBA squad.

Fortunately, Smith — who was named to the Naismith Hall of Fame in March and is the all-time leading scorer in women's pro basketball — is used to challenges.

"So far so good," said Smith, who was a Liberty assistant coach since 2014. "I thank Bill all the time. He allowed us to have a voice even as assistants and to be able to do a lot, so a lot of things we do now are very similar. The decision-making and some of those things will be different but a lot of it's very comfortable: We're playing basketball. . . . I enjoy it. We have a good time. We work hard. But there's going to be discipline about execution.

"It's enjoying what we do every day but also competing at the highest level. . . . [Laimbeer's advice] was just be yourself, don't be different than who you are. Other than that, it's decision-making. You'll have to make tough calls, but hopefully we're prepared. And we're going to work hard. We'll make mistakes and have to get back after it, but that's OK. We're going to be doing it the best we can."

The Liberty have done just fine in the regular season, 66-36 over the past three campaigns. But after falling in the Eastern Conference finals in 2015, they got first-round byes the past two seasons only to get upset in their opener each time.

So what's going to make this year any different?

"[We have to] get some guts, some heart," guard Shavonte Zellous, who is beginning her third Liberty season, said. "We relax and lose focus a little bit. This year we have to continue to stay at our peak. . . . That's what's going to get us over this year. . . . Having Katie leading us, it's going to be right. Having the leadership of Katie makes it easier. Her being our assistant for so long and [taking] the head-coaching position just makes it more fun.

"We're more loose, we're having a lot of fun, we believe in each other. . . . We're not trying to go through that again, one-and-done."

First-round pick Kia Nurse adds perimeter versatility to a stout defense, and Tina Charles is the unquestioned star, tied for third in the WNBA general managers' survey for MVP. But Smith, a former guard herself, is bringing in more ball movement.

"We're open now. It's more free," Zellous said. "It's going to be fun to watch. It's not going to be just stand and pass it in to Tina and watch Tina work. It's everybody getting involved, whether Tina gets it we're doing a lot of movement now. It's going to be fun to watch."

Smith is a stickler for details and discipline, obvious from watching Wednesday's media-day practice in Tarrytown, when she sometimes cut play off to correct mistakes.

"She is no nonsense at all," Kiah Stokes said. "If there's too many turnovers in a row, on the line; if people aren't talking on defense, on the line. It doesn't matter if it's starting five, last person off the bench, anybody, it doesn't matter who you are, she's going to hold you accountable and make sure you hold yourself accountable.

"Especially with Katie [as] head coach there's a new sense of 'all right, we're going to get things right, work hard, restart.' We've lost in the same place the last three years so we're sick of that. We want to go to the next level."

Every few weeks, Shavonte Zellous would shoot off a message from across the globe, asking if the New York Liberty were still the New York Liberty.

Scattered across Europe in their various EuroLeague assignments, members of the team this offseason were at least united in the uncertain future of their WNBA team. Coming off a successful but still disappointing 2017 campaign, where they once again were the best team in the Eastern Conference only to fall in a single-elimination playoff game, the Liberty now too had to contend with news that the team in the process of being sold.

And though the sale hasn't happened, Madison Square Garden Company still is looking for a new owner, the company said. So the Liberty will move from the Garden to the Westchester County Center, which has a capacity of 5,000. The team will return to the Garden for two games, one in June and one in August.

"Every two weeks I think I was talking to [the coaching staff], like 'What's going on? Did you hear anything? Who's buying us? Are we staying the same?'" said Zellous, a nine-year WNBA veteran in her third season with the Liberty. "I think it was challenging, especially for most of us that were overseas in Europe, not knowing the possibility of whether we were staying in New York or we were leaving, going into a new city. I think having our core group back with me, Tina [Charles], Epiphanny [Prince], Sugar [Rodgers], Kia [Vaughn], it makes the transition a lot easier."

Whatever they feel about the uncertainty, everyone can agree that it's been one very strange, very eventful offseason. Longtime coach Bill Laimbeer left to head the Las Vegas Aces and associate head coach Katie Smith took his place. Frustration ran high after back-to-back years of single-elimination playoff losses, center Kiah Stokes said, adding they were "sick of that."

Despite finishing first in their conference for three years running, the Liberty continue to be something of an afterthought to the Minnesota Lynx and Los Angeles Sparks, both of whom were listed ahead of the Liberty in the Associated Press' preseason power rankings.

"We've gotta get some guts, some heart," said Zellous, a guard. "We tend to relax and we tend to lose focus a little bit when other teams are at their peak, we're kinda going down. We've got to continue to stay at our peak no matter what part of the season we're in. That's what's going to get us over this year."

Despite a roster very similar to last year, the Liberty is different in integral ways. Defense always was a sticking point under Laimbeer, and that should continue to be a strength this season thanks to the addition of rookie Kia Nurse, the Liberty's first-round pick and the Women's Basketball Coaches Association defensive player of the year in her final season at the University of Connecticut. But Smith also is championing a very fluid, more run-and-gun offense. Charles, who averaged 19.7 points last year (third in the league), still will be a key, just not the only one.

"We're open now," Zellous said. "It's more free . . . It's going to be fun to watch, and it's not just going to be standing and passing it to Tina and watch Tina work."

The hope, Smith said, is to make sure "everybody is a threat."

"Everybody is a scorer," she said. "Everybody needs to be able to handle the basketball. Everybody needs to be involved, whether you're playing or not . . . We have some main threats that are going to carry the load . . . but we need everybody to have that scorer's mentality. They're ready at every moment to knock down big shots and make big plays."

And no matter what the future holds off the court, the Liberty wants to make sure that they control their own destiny on it. Part of that is going to be playing for the one or two seed in the playoffs, which could very well mean shocking a WNBA community that's very used to the Liberty being very good, but not quite good enough.

"We're just preparing and whatever happens, happens," Zellous said. "We still have to go out and perform [whether] the stands are empty or the stands are full."

WNBA training camps are intense and highly competitive. They give coaches a chance to see which rookies are pro-ready and what new skills returning veterans developed in the offseason. New York Liberty training camp has been rich with talent—from first-round draft pick Kia Nurse to newly acquired free agent Marissa Coleman, a nine-year veteran of the league.

Although not all the familiar names have arrived from overseas, first-year head coach Katie Smith did get to test the competitive waters in two preseason games. Monday night, the Liberty lost to the Dallas Wings 69-76. Tuesday, the Liberty prevailed over the Los Angeles Sparks 81-75.

“It was great for everyone to get their feet wet in this new season, from veterans down to the rookies,” said Lindsay Allen, who started at point in game two and scored nine points. “Giving the rookies a taste of the WNBA was cool. Implementing our new offense with Katie has been going well so far.”

She added, “For us, only practicing for a week, it looked pretty good, but we still have to tighten up on defense and our rebounding.”

Allen, 23, and Coleman, 31, have never played together before, but they actually graduated from the same Maryland high school. As a kid, Allen watched Coleman play her college basketball at the University of Maryland, where she won an NCAA title in 2006. Coleman scored 14 points in both preseason games.

“For her to be on this team is great, just for her veteran presence,” said Allen.

Although a rookie, Nurse comes in pro-ready after four years at the University of Connecticut as well as having played on the Canadian national team. Nurse came off the bench and scored 10 points in the loss to the Wings. She started in the win over the Sparks, scoring 19 points.

Allen had a strong rookie season in 2017. She spent her offseason playing in Russia and came into camp eager and ready. A graduate of the University of Notre Dame, she took a quick trip back to the U.S. early this spring to see her alma mater win the National Championship.

“It felt like I was a part of it because I was there. It was a crazy experience. All the alumnae that came back to watch it, it was just amazing,” said Allen.

There was a time when the Connecticut Sun boasted five UConn alums on its roster.

Husky fans will remember a starting lineup that consisted of Tina Charles, Asjha Jones and Kalana Greene with Jessica Moore and Renee Montgomery coming off the bench at the end of Mike Thibault's run as head coach of the Sun.

That group got the Sun to the 2012 WNBA Eastern Division finals.

The Liberty came to Mohegan Sun Arena this week with five former Huskies on the roster: Charles, Kiah Stokes, Kelly Faris, Bria Hartley (who has not reported yet) and first-round draft choice Kia Nurse. Faris, in addition to Charles, is also a former Sun player.

"I like 'em," first-year Liberty coach Katie Smith said of the UConn corps. "They are definitely some of our top players and they fit right in. They're pros and there is a familiarity. It's a really tight knit group and a (UConn) culture that they all take pride in. They want to represent it well. It's fun for them to have the stories and that camaraderie right off the jump. They also have vets that they can talk to."

That's especially true for Nurse.

Just a few months ago, she was wearing a UConn uniform. On Monday and Tuesday, she was back at Mohegan Sun Arena, only this time in Liberty garb.

The timing couldn't have been better for Nurse. She attended graduation ceremonies over the weekend in Storrs.

"It was great to go back to campus for a day, celebrate that and see my parents," Nurse said.

The 6-foot guard, prior to the WNBA draft, seemed destined to stay in Connecticut. Even Connecticut coach and general manager Curt Miller thought that would likely be the case.

But draft day rarely turns out as anticipated, and the Sun chose Lexie Brown with the ninth pick. The Sun didn't need another shooting guard and when Brown was not selected sooner, they chose her, with Nurse going No. 10 to New York.

"For me at the draft, it was wherever I got the opportunity," Nurse said. "I'm fortunate for that and I will make the best of it. New York is a great place, a great city. I love the team and the coaching staff. I think the fit was perfect."

Nurse played only 6 ½ minutes in the Liberty's preseason-opening loss to Dallas, but scored 10 points. She played almost double that against the Los Angeles Sparks and finished with nine points.

"She's solid," Smith said. "She handles the ball well, shoots it well. She's figuring out how to get that shot off, how to drive and finish. The one thing I love more now that I know more about her is her toughness and her competitive spirit on both ends (of the floor). She will pick up anybody, get knocked around and get right back up. That's the piece I'm seeing and the one you want everybody to have."

Smith also loves her speed.

"Her and Bria Hartley are going to have some (great) races," Smith said with a laugh. "Bria has never been beat, but Kia can fly."

Nurse said she has already started to bond with her newfound UConn friends.

"I'm very fortunate to be able to play and learn with some of the best who went to UConn," Nurse said. "We have a great alumni, Husky family that is very close knit. They're more than willing to help me out with the transition that I've been going through so far."
