HOW THE ATLANTA DREAM REBUILT A BROKEN WNBA FRANCHISE

M.A. VOEPEL FOR ESPN.COM

When they joined the Atlanta Dream in October 2021, coach Tanisha Wright and general manager Dan Padover took stock of their new WNBA team. It didn't take long.

Atlanta had just three players under contract -- one of whom had missed two-thirds of the 2021 season under suspension -- and a 2022 first-round draft pick. The Dream had gone a combined 23-65 from 2019 to 2021 and had a contentious separation from one of its former owners.

The mission for the new ownership group, front office and coaches was nothing short of an overhaul. But how do you fix a broken franchise? It starts from the top.

"Our league deserves owners who are just as passionate about this as we are," said Wright, who played in the WNBA for 14 seasons before becoming a coach. "I think that's exactly the type of ownership group that we have now: They're excited not only for the Atlanta Dream, but for the growth of the WNBA as a whole."

The Dream finished 2022 at 14-22 and just out of the playoffs, and No. 1 draft pick Rhyne Howard was WNBA Rookie of the Year. In the offseason, Atlanta had a handful of headlining acquisitions, including Allisha Gray, the 2017 rookie of the year. And entering the 2023 season -- which opens for the Dream on May 20 (1 p.m. ET, ABC) at the Dallas Wings -- there's an energetic feeling of potential.

"We know how hard we can work and what we can accomplish," Howard said. "It's only up from here. It's gonna be a good journey."

The vibe is much different than the summer of 2020, when the Dream organization seemed in crisis as the players' relationship with then-Atlanta ownership became fractured beyond repair.

Real estate investor Larry Gottesdiener knew this when he bought the Dream in February 2021 with an ownership trio that included former WNBA player Renee Montgomery.

Gottesdiener has made a fortune looking at spaces, imagining what could be there and then making it happen. The Dream, who entered the WNBA in 2008 as an expansion franchise and made three trips to the WNBA Finals between 2010 and 2013, weren't literally building from the ground up in 2021, but it felt like it.

Guard Danielle Robinson is only 45 assists away from breaking current Dream head coach Tanisha Wright's all-time assists record. Heading into Tuesday's game at Minneapolis, Robinson has 1,378 career assists (13th all-time); Wright finished her career with 1,423 (11th all-time).

ESPN will broadcast back-to-back Dream games as Atlanta hosts the Connecticut Sun on Saturday, July 22 at 1 p.m. E.T. and the Phoenix Mercury on Tuesday, July 25 at 7:00 p.m. ET.

Bally Sports South's season-long coverage will begin with the team's game at the Minnesota Lynx on Tuesday, May 23, airing on Bally Sports Southeast and streaming on the Bally Sports app beginning at 8:00 p.m. ET.

Nine Friday night Atlanta Dream games will air nationally on ION TV, beginning with the team's June 2nd home game against the Las Vegas Aces. Atlanta will have four games air on CBS Sports Network and eight on NBA TV. Several games will be available for fans to stream as well, with two on Twitter, three on Amazon Prime Video, and three streaming through ESPN3.

The broadcast team for Atlanta Dream games on Bally Sports returns for their third season together in 2023. Angel Gray is back for her third season as play-by-play announcer, while LaChina Robinson and Tabitha Turner will split time as analysts again this season. Robinson returns for her 14th season with the Dream, while Turner will provide commentary for a fifth consecutive season.

Dream Reload with Three Picks in 2023 WNBA Draft

The Atlanta Dream selected guard Haley Jones with the No. 6 overall pick out of Stanford, Laeticia Amihere out of South Carolina with the No. 8 pick, and Leigha Brown with the No. 15 pick (second round) in the 2023 WNBA Draft.

"We targeted two players at 6 and 8 and feel very fortunate to have landed both of them," said General Manager Dan Padover. "Haley has played at an elite level her entire life and is a versatile guard who will complement our backcourt in a variety of ways. Laeticia is a unique talent with endless potential, and we are looking forward to seeing her growth at the pro level. Leigha is an ultra-competitor who can play multiple positions. We are excited that this year's draft will bring another influx of youth and excitement to this roster."

Dream Sign Cheyenne Parker, Allisha Gray to Contract Extensions

Returning forward Cheyenne Parker and new-addition Allisha Gray both signed new contracts with the Dream prior to the 2023 season, keeping them in Atlanta for the near future.

The Dream acquired Gray in a trade that sent the team's 2023 No. 3 pick and 2025 first round pick to the Dallas Wings earlier this year. She joins the Dream after a career-best season with the Wings in 2022 where she averaged 13.3 points, 4.8 rebounds and 2.5 assists per game.

In her last two seasons with the Dream Parker has averaged 11.4 points, 5.7 rebounds and 1.1 steals per game. After missing the last half of the 2021 season to give birth to her daughter Naomi, Parker returned to the court to play in all 36 of Atlanta's games in 2022, tallying career-best records with 176 baskets, 163 defensive rebounds, 222 total rebounds, 71 assists and 37 steals.

Atlanta Continues to Invest in Player Growth with Kia Vaughn and Kiara McClendon Hires

The Dream hired WNBA veteran player Kia Vaughn as a Basketball Operations Associate and Kiara McClendon as Director of Player Engagement this past offseason.

Both hires reflect Dream ownership's commitment to providing resources and opportunities to both current and former players, giving them a world class experience while in Atlanta and setting them up for both current and long-term success.

In her newly created position, McClendon will serve as the players' primary off-court liaison, helping them seamlessly transition into life in Atlanta and build a community that bolsters their lives off the court.

NOTES AND STORYLINES

The Dream also launched a pilot program designed to transition recently retired WNBA players into the next phase of their careers while providing insight and training around the many opportunities in professional basketball, from coaching to working in a front office. The program is designed to develop the WNBA's own talent with the goal of setting former players up for long-term success.

Vaughn joined the team as the first member of the Dream's Retired Player Transition Program as a Basketball Operations Associate.

Dream Awarded Iliana Rupert on Waivers

Atlanta was awarded center Iliana Rupert on a waiver claim on February 11. Rupert's contract was temporarily suspended prior to the season as she fulfills overseas obligations, her timetable to join the team is TBD.

Atlanta Dream Make Long-Term Commitment to Head Coach and General Manager

Head coach Tanisha Wright, AP Coach of the Year in her first season, and Dan Padover, two-time WNBA Executive of the Year, each signed five-year contract extensions in December 2022 that will keep them in Atlanta through the 2027 season. Per team policy, terms of the contracts were not disclosed.

"We are essentially building the Atlanta Dream from scratch, and that takes time," said Larry Gottesdiener, primary owner of the Atlanta Dream. "What Tanisha and Dan accomplished with this team in less than a year is extraordinary, and is something that should put the sports world on notice of exciting things to come from our franchise."
