ABOUT AUGUST 13

August 13 was a historic night for Golden State. The Valkyries won their 17th game of the year, tying them with the 1998 Detroit Shock for the most of any WNBA expansion team (excluding the 1997 WNBA inaugural season). The Shock reached 17 wins in 30 games (their final game of the season), while Golden State accomplished the feat in 32 games.

Veronica Burton scored a career-high 30 points, which are the most points scored by a Valkyries player this season. Burton went 6-9 (66.7 percent) from three, her most-ever threes in a game, and 10-13 (76.9 percent) from the field, and had seven rebounds and seven assists. Burton is the third player all time to have 30 points, seven rebounds, seven assists, and shoot 75.0 percent from the field or better (Napheesa Collier on 7/27/25 and Sabrina Ionescu on 7/6/2022). The Northwestern alumna is the fourth player this season to have 30 points, seven rebounds and seven assists.

Cecilia Zandalasini scored a career-high 20 points on 70.0 percent (7-10) shooting, and reached 500 in her career on a three early on in the second quarter, one of her career-high six threes on the night. Burton and Zandalasini are the first teammates in the WNBA this season to each make six threes in the same game.

SF CHRONICLE - The Golden State Valkyries can't be blamed if they associate the Phoenix Mercury with heartbreak. The Golden State Valkyries can't be blamed if they associate the Phoenix Mercury with heartbreak.

After blowing a late lead in Phoenix in June courtesy of an 18-1 run, the Valkyries came one second away from going to overtime on Monday before a Cecilia Zandalasini foul sent Alyssa Thomas to the free-throw line. She made her second of two to lift the Mercury to a 78-77 win at Chase Center.

The Mercury shot 47.4%, the third-best percentage against the Valkyries all season, to hand Golden State (10-11) its fourth home loss of the year and fourth in the past five overall.

With Golden State down 75-72, Zandalasini missed a layup with 17.1 seconds left. Phoenix made it a two-possession game with a free throw by newcomer DeWanna Bonner before Janelle Salaün hit a 3-pointer with 10.3 seconds left. After another Bonner free throw, Salaün tied it on a late fadeaway before the Zandalasini foul, coming back to improbably tie the game despite trailing 76-72 with 15 seconds remaining.

Head coach Natalie Nakase, as she has several other times lately, took exception to the call.

"I think the fans here, whether it's our fans, or whether it is Phoenix Mercury fans, they deserve great moments, great shots, and to sit there watching someone win a game off of a free throw, I think it's a disservice," Nakase said. "So I'm just asking for consistency. I'm begging for consistency."

Nakase has cited officiating inconsistency as an issue throughout the season, pointing out the free-throw discrepancy in the Valkyries' loss in Las Vegas and a foul not called on a Salaün 3-pointer late in the game.

With the clock winding down, Zandalasini stood in Thomas' shooting lane and the Phoenix forward bumped into her while driving to the hoop.

"I can't speak for the foul at the end of the game," said Valkyries guard Tiffany Hayes. "At the end of the day, they called it, they got free throws. ... I do think that there was a lot of contact, and I don't know how much I can speak on it, but like, it goes both ways, and it's definitely physical."

Officiating has been a hot topic in the WNBA all season, stemming from physical contests throughout the league and perceived inconsistent calls. Nakase has previously criticized officials for calling travelling violations late in games after not calling them earlier and several times in Golden State's recent four-game road trip for late foul calls against the Valkyries.

Phoenix finished with 19 free throws (and made 12) to Golden State's 15 attempts (and 13 makes). Salaün's flurry of five points in six seconds got the Valkyries back into the contest despite their shooting at a far lower percentage (33.8%) on 74 shots compared 47.4% on 57 shots from the Mercury.

Point guard Veronica Burton, who led the team with 17 points, pointed out that the Valkyries struggled in other areas leading to the final minutes. Golden State shot 26.8% from 2-point range and allowed 17 Phoenix fast-break points. Zandalasini and Hayes each also missed layups within 10 feet in the final 1:02.

"There's some things we did well, especially down the stretch," she said. "I think we executed and got the looks that we wanted to in late-game situations, but didn't go our way. But there are a lot of things in our game we need to clean up."

The Mercury, without injured bigs Satou Sabally and Kahleah Copper, relied on their 3-point shot, which landed at 41.4% (12 of 29) despite having just eight available players. Bonner scored 22 points off the bench and Thomas scored 17.

Half of Phoenix's free throws came in the fourth quarter. The Valkyries had just three foul shots in the frame, all from Salaün when she was fouled taking a 3-pointer.

"Losing off a free throw, that hurts," Nakase said. "If it's because I'm a rookie coach, then I'll take the loss. So if I have to be better with the refs, or if there's something, there's a badge of honor that I have to earn, then I'll do it."

Golden State will head to Seattle on Wednesday for its final game before the All-Star break. The Valkyries are back under .500 for the first time since falling to Dallas on June 17.

"That's a frustrating loss, like that's one that we can get and we should have gotten," Burton said. "We executed down the stretch the past two games, but it doesn't matter if they're also scoring or making plays, too. So I don't say necessarily common denominators, it's basketball, but at the end of the day, we just gotta find ways to come out on top."

HEAD COACH NATALIE NAKASE

SCHOOL: UCLA - '03 EXPERIENCE: 1st Season

Natalie Nakase enters her first season as head coach of the Golden State Valkyries. Nakase takes the helm of the Valkyries following over 16 years of coaching professional basketball, including 10 seasons in the NBA with the Los Angeles Clippers, and three seasons as first assistant coach with the Las Vegas Aces. Nakase will report to Valkyries General Manager Ohemaa Nyanin, and began her tenure with the team on October 21.

Nakase is the first Asian American head coach in the WNBA, and was the first female coach to sit on an NBA team's bench when she was an assistant coach for the Los Angeles Clippers during the 2014 summer league.

Nakase spent the last three years (2022-2024) as first assistant coach with the Aces, where she played a critical role guiding the team to back-to-back WNBA Championships (2022, 2023). During her tenure, Las Vegas topped the WNBA's defensive rating charts in 2023, with a rating of 97.7. She assisted with in-game adjustments, substitution rotations, end of game decisions, time out strategies, head coach's challenge usages, clock management and organizing the team on both ends of the court. Nakase also served as the Aces top scout for college and international athletes. With Nakase on the sideline, the Aces went 87-29 over the last three seasons, including a 19-6 mark in the playoffs.

Prior to her time with the Aces, Nakase spent 10 seasons in various capacities with the Clippers, most recently as an assistant coach and player development coach in a dual role with the NBA team and their G League affiliate, the Agua Caliente Clippers. There, she assisted then-Head Coach Tyronn Lue with in-game planning on offense and defense, and assisted with player development and defensive scouting reports.

Nakase got her coaching start in 2008 with the Women's Professional Basketball German League, serving as head coach for the Wolfenbuttel Wildcats for two seasons (2008-10). She then served as an assistant coach for the Tokyo Apache for one season (2010-11) in the Men's Professional Basketball Japan League, followed by acting as head coach for the Saitama Broncos from 2011-12, making her the first woman to serve as head coach in the league.

Nakase was a walk-on women's basketball player at University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) from 1998-2003, where she played her way into the starting lineup and served as team captain for three seasons. A native of Los Angeles, she graduated with her bachelor of science in psychology. After graduation, she played professionally for two years in the National Women's Basketball League (NWBL) with the San Jose Spiders and San Diego Siege. Nakase also competed for one season in Germany, where she suffered a career-ending knee injury in 2008.
